the 1990s, the number of people in the world who are obese has increased by 100% (World Health Organization 1997).

Obesity is a complex condition, with many causes. It is a multifactorial condition, with a combination of genetic, environmental and lifestyle factors contributing to its development. The most common cause of obesity is a combination of a sedentary lifestyle and a diet high in calories and fat.

Obesity is a major public health problem, as it is a leading cause of death and disability. It is also a major risk factor for many other conditions, including heart disease, diabetes and cancer.

There are many ways to prevent and treat obesity. The most important is to adopt a healthy lifestyle, with a diet low in calories and fat, and a regular exercise routine.
